

A Practical Foundation in Pension Governance

Inside the Pension Boardroom is specifically designed for pension trustees and directors in their first one to three years of service, providing practical governance knowledge needed to contribute confidently and effectively at the board table.

Strong pension boards depend on informed, capable trustees. Yet many trustees assume their role without clear preparation for how pension governance works in practice—how actuarial valuations inform funding decisions, how investments are overseen, and how fiduciary responsibilities are exercised in real-world board environments.

Developed by ACPM, Canada's leading advocate for a strong and sustainable retirement income system, this one-day, instructor-led program provides early-tenure trustees with the role clarity, governance insight, and technical fluency needed to fulfill their responsibilities with confidence.

Grounded in findings from ACPM's 2025 Pension Trustee Survey, the curriculum responds directly to trustee-identified needs for:

- Clear understanding of fiduciary duties and governance responsibilities
- Greater fluency in actuarial valuations, funding policies, and key assumptions
- Stronger capability in investment oversight and risk governance
- Practical, real-world learning rooted in pension board decision-making

This program is designed for:

- Pension trustees and directors in their first one to three years of service
- Governance professionals supporting pension boards
- Plan executives and board secretaries seeking deeper governance insight

Participants gain insight into the full governance cycle of a pension board—from interpreting actuarial valuations and assessing funding implications to overseeing investments and managing risk. Through interactive case discussions, decision simulations, and scenario exercises, participants develop the judgment and confidence required to contribute meaningfully at the board table.

This program is not a technical actuarial or investment course. It is a governance program designed to help trustees understand their role, interpret complex materials, ask informed questions, and exercise sound oversight.

Program Highlights

Participants will learn to:

- Understand how pension boards operate and make decisions
- Interpret actuarial valuations and funding implications
- Evaluate investment performance and oversee investment managers
- Exercise fiduciary duties and governance responsibilities effectively
- Strengthen risk oversight and scenario-based decision-making
- Contribute confidently and constructively to board deliberations

Program Format

This one-day, in-person program includes:

- Instructor-led sessions
- Case-based learning drawn from real pension environments
